

Talk on “Voices of Resistance: Challenging Oppression Across Gender, Caste and Race in African American and Dalit Women” on 26.3.24

Objective: To introduce students to slave narratives and voices of oppression in literature to broaden their understanding of literature.

The talk was delivered by Dr. Amanda Khyriem, Associate Professor, Union Christian College who introduced the students to the historical slave trade and the Atlantic trade route as well as contrasting it with the oppression felt by Dalit women in India. The talk elicited great curiosity and responses from the students and furthered their understanding of the interconnectedness of felt experiences amongst the different global communities. The program was attended by 80 students from the Department of English as well as faculty members.

Total expenditure: 4200/-

Funding: College

Outcome:

Students were open to exploring marginalised voices as an area of study with the scope of future research interest in the field.
